

FELL'S POINT FOOD TOUR – Thursday, August 6, 2015 – 4pm

Established originally for its deep-water port, Fell's Point quickly became a shipbuilding and commercial center. Within the historic buildings are not only the greatest concentration of pubs and bars in the city, but also some of the city's best cuisine.

On this guided, narrated walking tour, you will experience and learn about the significance of the small town once separated from Baltimore. The Fell's Point Food Tour will bring the group throughout this historic neighborhood, teach the group about its history and culture, and enjoy local food and drinks along the way.

Enjoy a multi-course progressive meal served at four critically acclaimed local restaurants. The restaurants are selected to pay homage to the neighborhood's history through its privateering roots, Eastern European immigrants, and modern influences.

Throughout the event, the guide will provide a historic, cultural, and architectural tour of the area as well as about the restaurants and dishes.
